COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course will present an overview of bilingualism from both linguistic and sociolinguistic perspectives. We will examine bilingual language acquisition, measurement, code-switching, the effect of bilingualism on cognition, language attrition, heritage language acquisition, as well as issues in schooling and society. The course will focus on both “micro” and “macro” issues, emphasizing their empirical investigation. Most of the course will be face-to-face, with a few online modules scheduled. You will be informed of the exact configuration on the first day of class.

REQUIRED READING SELECTIONS:

The book will be available exclusively at the Panther Bookstore on Downer Ave, or of course you can order your own copy. The required reading packet will be at Clark Graphics on Oakland Ave. by the first week of class.

Although this is primarily a face-to-face course, approximately 25% of our sessions may be online. Therefore, internet access is required.

At the moment, this course is oversubscribed. All registered and wait listed students must be present on the first day of class, or risk being administratively dropped. No students will be added after the first day of class.

THIS IS NOT THE SYLLABUS.

A full syllabus will be distributed on the first day of class, and also be available on D2L.
