The committee met once this year to elect a chairperson and to establish a meeting schedule. No business was directed toward the committee, and as a consequence no further meetings were called as of 15 March 79.

At the first meeting, the members once again questioned the appropriateness of the committee's name to its charter, and if the committee should even remain in existence.

It was suggested that appropriate tasks for the committee in lieu of new business, would be to look at the relationship of the Rights and Responsibilities Committee to other faculty grievance committees, and to determine the feasibility of evaluating the new University grievance procedures. These tasks are in progress.
