Recommendation of the Economic Benefits Committee to establish faculty governance to decisions regarding staffing of summer sessions.

1. In the event that summer session funding prevents adequate program offerings, the administration shall present such facts to the Faculty Senate, which shall decide whether and how staffing at reduced rates of pay will be accomplished.

Rationale: There may come a time when funding provided will not allow sufficient program offerings based on the rate of 1/9 academic year salary for each three credit course. Should this occur, the faculty ought to be part of the decision regarding the proper action to take. If courses are to be taught at reduced rates of pay, it should be the faculty who decides to do this. Further, if such becomes necessary, some uniformity across departments so affected would be advisable.

Dear Mike:

As we discussed at the University Committee meeting on April 7, I am hesitant to approve Faculty Document No. 1250, "Recommendation of the Economic Benefits Committee to establish faculty governance to consider decisions regarding staffing of summer sessions" in its present form. From the discussion which took place, I believe I understand the issues involved and the concerns of the faculty, but I do not think the wording of the document adequately expresses them. The proposed statement is too vague in its current form. For example, what is meant by the phrase "...adequate program offerings,..."?

I would appreciate the Faculty Senate giving further consideration to this matter. Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,
