MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

JAMES F. MARSHALL
August 15, 1911 - October 3, 1984

Professor Marshall received his M.A. and PhD. degrees from the University of Illinois. He came to UWM in 1958 after teaching at the University of Illinois, the University of Arizona and Whittier College. He taught at UWM until his retirement in 1975. At UWM he was chairman of the Department of French and Italian 1958-1963 and again 1968-1970. He was instrumental in developing the graduate program of the French section and in fostering the development of the Italian section. He served on the Divisional Executive Committee and played an important role in the development of the UWM Library. As a member of UWM committees, he was associated with the growth of the University. He helped organize the UWM Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Teaching mainly courses in nineteenth century French literature, he inspired his students to continue their work. He would be pleased to know that the Stendhal Club recently accepted an article from one of his former students.

In addition to many articles in scholarly publications, he published three books: an edition of Stendhal's Henri III, an edition of Victor Jacquemont's Letters to Achille Chaper and the Correspondence of Mme de Stael and Du Pont de Nemours, published by the University of Wisconsin Press. In the preparation of the last book he was supported by a grant from the Eleutherian Mills Hagley Foundation of Delaware. He was the recipient of a grant from the American Council of Learned Societies and a faculty fellowship from the Fund for the Advancement of Education of the Ford Foundation. Although he was in poor health, he continued working after his retirement and did research on Flaubert and the Bible.

He is remembered warmly by his former colleagues and students who share the grief of his wife Sally.
