Doralyon J. Hickey died March 18, 1987 in Denton, Texas. She had been associated with the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee as Director and later as Dean of the School of Library Science from 1974 through 1977. It was during her tenure here that the School achieved a long sought after goal, accreditation of the master's degree program by the American Library Association.

Professor Hickey earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from Rice University (1951), a Master of Arts from the Presbyterian School of Christian Education (1953), a Master of Library Science from Rutgers University (1957) and Doctor of Philosophy (Religion) from Duke University (1962). Doralyon was on the faculty of the School of Library Science, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill for twelve years prior to coming to Milwaukee. In 1973, she was awarded the prestigious Margaret Mann award by the Resources and Technical Services Division of the American Library Association in recognition of outstanding professional achievement in the areas of cataloging and classification. She served in a leadership role for many committees in the American Library Association and the International Federation of Library Associations. For family reasons, she returned to her home state after leaving Milwaukee and was on the faculty of the School of Library and Information Sciences, North Texas State University at the time of her death.

We are grateful for the strength and leadership she contributed to the School of Library and Information Science and for her personal example of dedication to the library profession, respect for associates, and concern for people.
