DROPPING COURSES

The minimum program for full-time students is 12 credits in Commerce, Education, and Letters and Science, or 14 credits in Engineering. A student who drops or quits a course without permission will receive a failure in that course and is liable to further disciplinary action.

Entering Freshmen

A freshman in his first regular semester of attendance at the University of Wisconsin - Milwaukee may reduce his program to the minimum credit load by dropping a course or courses during the first eight weeks of classes with the permission of his advisor without incurring a failure in the course or courses dropped.

Other Students

All other students are permitted to make program changes only during the first two weeks of classes, except for hardship cases.

Hardship Cases

Deans and Directors may exercise discretion in applying the above rules when a student seeks a program change because of circumstances beyond his control.

Procedure

To drop a course, a student must obtain a "Change of Registration" form in the Office of his Dean or Director of a College, School, or Division, and file the form in the office of his Dean or Director with the required signatures within three days.
