ANNUAL REPORT OF THE FACULTY LOUNGE COMMITTEE

The Faculty Lounge Committee was appointed by the Provost to superintend the faculty lounge and its facilities for the comfort, convenience and friendly intercourse of the teaching staff of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

In order to make the lounge as pleasant as possible for relaxation, refreshment and social contacts among faculty members, a minimum number of rules have been set up. To achieve the purpose for which the faculty lounge is primarily intended, no students may enter or be brought into the lounge at any time; no committee meetings may be held in the lounge until after 4:00 p.m.; no outside organizations may use the lounge unless at least one member of such organization is a faculty member; for such meetings the lounge is available evenings and weekends at rates of $3-5, depending on the size of the group.

Early in the first year of the operation of the lounge, Professor William Jenkins suggested that coffee be served once a week. This service became so popular that, at the suggestion of Professor Marvin Summers, the service was extended to include the morning hours of the whole school week.

At present about twelve pounds of regular coffee per week are used, besides a considerable amount of instant coffee, to serve the large numbers that daily make use of the lounge. The small charge made for coffee and rolls covers the cost of these together with staple supplies, such as soap, napkins, towels, sugar, cream, etc., and the cleaning of furniture and draperies. The cost of food and staples comes to about forty dollars a week. This income does not cover breakage of dishes, so that any dishes broken are paid for by the individual responsible for the breakage. As a matter of fact, there has been very little breakage and those responsible have been prompt and ready to pay. Professor John Paul Jones has done most of the purchasing of staple supplies.
The faculty members wash their own dishes, dry them, and put them away, clean the ash trays, and keep the room looking presentable, so that it may be pleasant and inviting for all during the day.

All faculty members are urged to take an active part in the lounge service so that each will have a sense of ownership and all members are likewise urged to make full use of the lounge facilities for their personal enjoyment as well as for the democratic group activity that the lounge represents.

Members of the Art Department staff have been most amiable and generous in allowing some of their paintings to be hung temporarily on the walls of the lounge, thus adding immeasurably to its attractiveness. It is to be hoped that this practice will be continued and that the teaching staff of the Art Department will consult from time to time with the Lounge Committee for an occasional change of exhibits, perhaps twice a year or so.

The committee is always glad to receive suggestions for making the lounge and its facilities more conducive to faculty satisfaction.
