The 1965-66 Financial Aids Committee held six meetings to date. Three sessions were held to consider appeals from 13 students whose applications for student loans had been rejected by the Director of Loans and Undergraduate Scholarships. The Committee upheld the appeal in five cases and denied the appeal in eight cases.

The Committee approved the allotment of a total of twenty scholarships for the 1966-67 academic year. The approval was for one year.

Mrs. Doris Meissner was appointed Acting Director of the Student Financial Aids Office beginning the second semester. The appointment will terminate July 1, 1966.

The Work-Study Program originally designed for students of low-income backgrounds was extended to students who have need as defined by the University.

A "package" system will be used in 1966-67 in awarding financial aids. The student will be granted aids in the form of scholarships, loans or work-study opportunities depending upon his needs and eligibility.

On April 21, 1966, the UWM Faculty authorized grants-in-aid to athletes. The Financial Aids Committee was designated as the committee to set policies relating to grants-in-aid to athletes.

The following policy statements were approved by the Faculty:

1. In order to qualify for financial support the athletes must meet the same academic standards as those required for staying in the University.

2. The athletic eligibility of the applicants should be determined by the Athletic Board which acts as a Subcommittee on Financial Assistance.

3. The financial need of the applicants should be determined by the Financial Aids Committee using the same forms and criteria as used for other students.

4. The maximum amount of the grant-in-aid to an athlete should equal the amount of the fees and tuition and books.

5. The funds for the grants-in-aid for the athletes, as administered under the policies of the Financial Aids Committee, shall come from non-tax-supported funds.
