Recommendation of the Student Life and Interests Committee for Two-Day Study Period Before Final Examinations

At the regular meeting of the Student Life and Interests Committee held on October 5, 1966, Student Government legislation, J 2-USL-4, was discussed. Content of the legislation is as follows:

WHEREAS: The University student needs time to prepare for final exams, and

WHEREAS: At present, exams begin immediately after classes terminate for the semester and time is not permitted for students to fully prepare for exams, and

WHEREAS: Study breaks have long been an established practice on university and college campuses across the country, and therefore

BE IT RESOLVED: That there be a two-day study period established between the end of classes and the beginning of exams, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That copies of this bill be sent to all necessary University officials, and that it be presented to the Student Life and Interests Committee for their approval as soon as possible.

Respectfully submitted,
May 19, 1966

George Sorum
