RULES FOR A QUESTION PERIOD

1. Fifteen minutes of every meeting of the Senate shall be devoted to a question period, during which members of the Senate may address questions to the Chancellor.

2. The President pro tem of the Senate shall preside over the Senate during the question period.

3. Members of the Senate may file questions with the Secretary of the Faculty at least three days prior to the Senate meeting. These questions shall be listed in the order of their delivery to the Secretary, and a document containing these questions shall be given to each member of the Senate at the beginning of the meeting.

4. Questions may be addressed to the Chancellor without prior notice, but priority shall be given to questions filed in advance, and questions without notice shall be presented only after questions on notice have been put.

5. Any member of the Senate may ask supplementary questions growing out of the reply of the Chancellor to the principal question, but it shall be the duty of the presiding officer to prevent the presentation of supplementary questions from becoming a debate.

6. In his discretion, the presiding officer may extend the question period beyond the fifteen minutes allotted by the standing Rule of the Senate.

7. Question periods shall begin at the October, 1970, meeting of the Senate.
