BULLETIN BOARD AND HANDBILL REGULATIONS

A. Anything which is posted is a poster; this includes flyers, handbills or anything which is attached to a bulletin board.

1. Posters may not exceed 14" x 22". (Interior only)
   Posters must indicate organizational or individual sponsorship.
2. When posting a poster, the following rules must be observed:
   a) Only one poster concerning one topic can be placed on any one bulletin board.
   b) The removal or obscuring of any other active poster is prohibited.
   c) Posters and flyers must be picked up or removed by one week after the event has taken place.
   d) The erection, posting, or attaching of signs in or on any University building, on campus trees or monuments, or on any part of the University grounds is prohibited without the expressed consent of the Department of Physical Plant, Garland Hall 7-C, (Regent Rule).
   e) Student Organizations may use any bulletin board not marked for the use of a specific University Department or organization.
   f) The USG President or his representative may prosecute in the Student Court any person or organization violating these rules.
   g) Notices advertising the sale of personal property may not exceed 8 1/2 x 11" and may be posted by anyone. Other use of bulletin boards is limited to registered student organizations and University departments.

B. Any question of interpretation of these rules shall be decided by the University Student Government.

C. Bulletin boards not limited in use to one student organization or academic department shall be marked "All University Bulletin Board" and shall contain a copy of these rules.

D. Hand Bills

1. A Hand bill is any printed, mimeographed, xerographed, stencilled, handprinted, etc., sheet distributed on behalf of a candidate or an advertising of any type.
2. Any person or student organization distributing Hand bills must be responsible that any material which might be dropped or otherwise left lying about as a result of distribution will be picked up promptly and that the distribution will be conducted in a manner which does not interfere with any regular University function.

As a result of the numerous organizations requiring space on bulletin boards, these regulations must be adhered to by all involved. It is hoped that these regulations will be enforced by the individual organizations, but if necessary University Student Government will assume the responsibility. Although organizations may leaflet in the Union, they will be held responsible for their leaflets if they are scattered about. Your full cooperation will be appreciated.
Publication Regulations:

1) Publications edited or published by students or student organizations need not seek the approval of the Student Life and Interests Committee if they meet the following conditions:

   a. State funds are not used to finance the publication.

   b. If the publication solicits advertising or uses the name of the University, the publication must print in its advertising contract and in each issue of the publication, the following disclaimer for University liability:

      "This publication is not an official publication of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. It is not funded by the University, nor does it claim to represent any organization other than the __________. The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee is not liable for debts incurred by the publisher."

      Where the publication does not solicit advertising or use the name of the University, the publisher is solely responsible for its contents.

2) If State funds are used to finance the publication, or if the name of the University is used without a University disclaimer, or if ads are solicited without the use of a University disclaimer, the organization must first seek approval from the Student Life and Interests Committee. Only chartered student organizations may receive such approval.

3) Copies of all student publications financed with state funding and/or approved by SLIC must be filed with the Student Life and Interests Committee immediately on publication.

4) Any campus group or individual in violation of these policies is liable to a penalty as may be determined by the Student Court.
