Guidelines for Appropriate Use of University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee Information Technology Resources

1. UWM provides access to computers, databases, electronic mail, the Internet, software, and other information technology resources (University IT Resources) to its faculty, staff and students, as well as community members and authorized individuals/parties, in order to facilitate the pursuit of excellence in the University's missions of scholarship, learning, teaching, research, and service.

2. In order to preserve access to University IT Resources for the entire community, everyone is expected to know and adhere to the appropriate University, state and federal regulations and guidelines.

3. In addition to this policy, the regulations that govern personal conduct and use of University facilities also apply to the use of University IT resources.

4. General Guidelines

University IT Resources are owned by UWM. Access to them is a privilege granted to members of the University community and carries with it the responsibility to use them for University related activities, while exercising common sense and civility.

5. Individual Responsibility

Authorization for use of University IT Resources is provided to each individual for his or her own use. No one may use an authorization that belongs to someone else. Everyone is expected to protect the confidentiality of their personal identification codes and passwords. Everyone is expected to realize that in many cases the University has obtained access to University IT Resources exclusively for the use of members of the University community.

6. Security

Protection of University IT Resources depends upon everyone taking reasonable care to insure that unauthorized persons are not able to use their identification codes, passwords or privileges.

7. Misrepresentation

Persons may not misrepresent themselves when accessing University IT resources or when using those resources for any form of electronic communication. Persons may not obtain or use – or attempt to obtain or use - passwords or other access credentials that have not been either assigned to them as individuals, or provided for their use as University employees.

8. Malicious activity

Persons may not alter or intentionally or unreasonably damage, disrupt, impair or waste University IT Resources or interfere with another person’s authorized access to them. Persons may not use University IT Resources to commit acts of Cyberbullying as defined in the UWM Code of Conduct (SAAP 65 – Appendix 2 – Section 4.1).

9. Commercial, Political and Non-University Activities

Persons may not use University IT Resources to promote or solicit sales for any goods, services, unauthorized charities, or other contributions unless such use conforms to UWM rules and regulations governing the use of University resources or unless such efforts are on behalf of a student organization recognized by the University. University employees may not use University IT Resources to solicit donations for a political campaign external to UWM. Except for research collaborations, no one may use University IT Resources to promote or advance the interests of any for-profit non-University entity, group or organization for commercial purposes unless appropriately authorized.

10. Incidental Personal Use

In the interest of making the use of University IT Resources a natural part of the day-to-day work of all members of the University community, incidental personal use is permitted. Nevertheless, one should use non-University sources of e-mail, Internet access, and other information technology services for activities of an extensive or recurring nature that do not serve University purposes.

11. Violations of other laws

Persons may not use University IT Resources in a manner that violates federal, state, UW System or University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee policies, regulations or laws.

12. Use of Commercial Software

All persons using University-provided software must do so only in accord with the applicable license agreement. Persons may use personally owned software on University owned computers provided there is no adverse impact on University IT resources and documentation of software ownership is kept and available at the site where the computer is normally located.

13. Development of Software

Ownership and intellectual property rights for software developed by University employees in various circumstances are outlined in UW System Financial and Administrative policy G10.

14. Sanctions

Violation of University rules governing appropriate use of University IT Resources may result in loss of access privileges, University disciplinary action, and/or criminal prosecution. The appropriate due process and policies will be followed depending upon whether faculty, academic staff, university staff or students are alleged to be involved.

15. Administrative Access to University IT Resources

Although the University respects a diversity of perspectives and accordingly does not condone either censorship or the unauthorized inspection of electronic files, persons should be aware that the normal operation and maintenance of University IT Resources require the backup of data and records, the logging of activity and the monitoring of general usage patterns. IT staff members must respect and ensure the confidentiality and privacy of the data they observe or access during the course of performing their duties.

16. Monitoring/Disclosure of Files or Activity

Consistent with the constraints of confidentiality, the University may inspect files stored on any University IT Resources or monitor usage when there is cause to believe that a law or a UW System or UWM policy has been violated, when there is need to defend a civil or criminal claim filed against the University, or in conjunction with a workplace misconduct investigation. The appropriate due process and policies will be followed depending upon whether faculty, academic staff, university staff or students are alleged to be involved. Each person should be aware that their electronic records, files and communications may be subject to the University's obligation to respond to subpoenas or other court orders, reasonable discovery requests, internal audits and requests for documents pursuant to Wisconsin public records laws.

17. Unit IT policies

Individual units within the University may have supplemental written guidelines for use of those University IT Resources that are under their control. Such guidelines must be consistent with this policy, but may provide additional detail, restrictions, and user guidelines. Such policies must be disclosed to those who are potentially affected by them.
